

Reported Speech (Indirect Speech)

1. Introductory clause in the present tense (e.g. he says):

- No backshift of tenses
- Personal pronouns must be changed ( I → ® he/she etc.)
- Expressions of time and place are not changed

Example: Peter says, "I want to talk to Mary tomorrow."

® Peter says that he wants to talk to Mary tomorrow.

2. Introductory clause in the past tense (e.g. he said):

- Backshift of tenses
- Personal pronouns must be changed ( I ® he/she etc.)
- Expressions of time and place are often changed

Example: My father said, "I'm sure I saw you here last week."

® My father said that he was sure that he had seen him there the week before.

!! Expressions like today, this month, next year don't have to be changed, if the report is given before that day, month, year etc. is over.

!! Always think about the logic of the situation. For ex. :the simple present can remain unchanged in reported speech to show that something is always the case: John said, "School with us starts at 8.10." He told me that school with them starts at 8.10.

The same rules apply to questions.

"Did Marama's horse win a prize?" Owen asked.

® Owen asked whether Marama's horse had won a prize. (or not)

"Why won't you marry me?" asked Donald.

® Donald asked her why she wouldn't marry him.

!! Mind the word order:

- in direct questions auxiliary/subject/main verb : Can I go out?
- in reported questions subject/(auxiliary)/main verb : if I can go out
